“The businesses in the civil infrastructure consultancy, project management and construction will get a big boost because of the government’s expenditure in all of these areas. The filter down effect from government spending will be huge.

One good thing about infrastructure spending is the filter down effect to the economy, which is much bigger than upstream oil production.

So when the Govt. invests in building airports, roads, and expanding ports, for example, the filter down effect to companies in the economy will be much wider.”
